Project1

Ava Boehm, Sophia France, Lucy Freund, Claire LaBudda, Cate Oneil

RFM Project #1

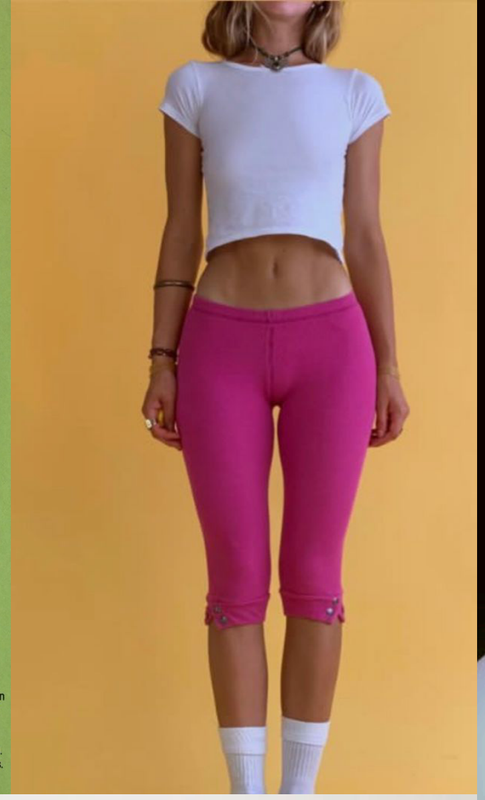

Vision Board

Strapless unitard, $38, by Sisley. Green bra top by Calvin, a division of Calvin Klein Industries. Socks by E.G. Smith. Model's own glasses. All prices are approximate.

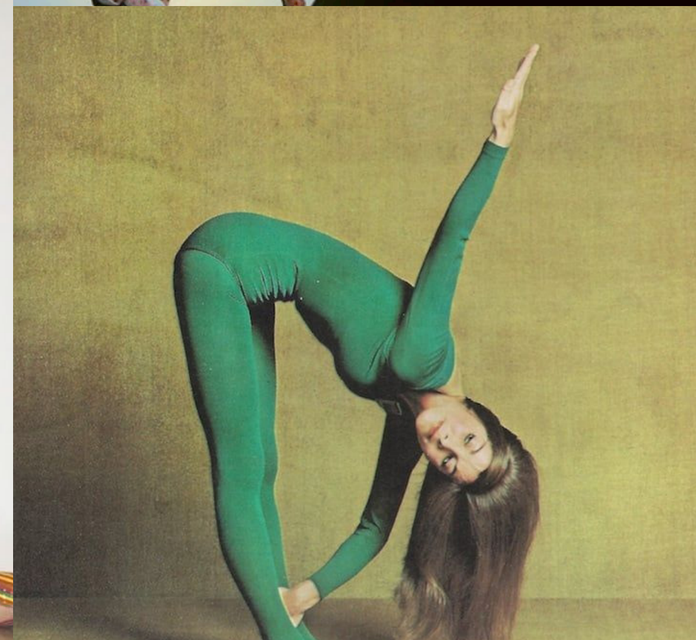

Business Concept

Our Clothing Line:

What we sell: alternative active wear

Value Proposition: We don't require our consumers to sacrifice sustainability, comfort, or style

Target Market

Demographics + Psychographics

-Younger Generations (Generation Alpha, Generation Z, and Millennial)

- These generations are born between 2010-1981 and make up 52% of total consumers within the retail clothing industry (Media Culture, 2025).

-Digitally Native
-Highly Brand Aware
-Social Media Driven
-Sustainability Focused
-Trend and Style Oriented
-Prioritize Quality and Durability
-Students and Young Professionals
-Seeking Affordability

Consumer Segments:

Trend Driven Young Consumers

Sustainability Conscious Value Seekers

Socially Influenced Students and Young Professionals

Problem + Opportunity

Solution and Opportunity:

Affordable, Up-cycled Essentials-
Create versatile, stylish basics that balance comfort, quality, and price. Reducing textile waste while make clothes that will last a lifetime!

Sustainability without Green-washing -
Use pre-existing materials, clear sourcing disclosures, ethical production practices, and honest pricing breakdowns to build consumer trust and work against green washing.

Timeless Over Trendy-
Focus on wardrobe staples that are durable, reducing overconsumption while increasing value.

Quality Without Luxury Markups-
Deliver high-quality fabrics and construction at mid-range prices by using second hand materials transformed into a completely new piece.

Market Opportunity

Rising Demand for Sustainable Fashion-
Consumers look for eco-conscious brands but struggle to find options they trust.

Athleisure is Still Growing-
The athletic wear market continues expanding as consumers prioritize comfort and versatility in daily wear.

Secondhand Market Boom-
The resale and vintage market is growing rapidly especially in Gen Z as thrifted and vintage styles are trending.

Store Design

Layout Concept: Open concept with a unique thrift-like feel. Funky colors, re-used materials, bold rugs, thrifted/vintage furniture.

Product Placement: Our goal is to have an open store where creativity and connections begin. Our clothes will line the walls on racks and accessories will be displayed on our vintage furniture.

Sales Driving Features: Our store will include multiple pop-culture collaborations with movies, shows, and celebrity's to drive sales and connect with customers.

Marketing

Target Market- Gen Z college students who are sustainability conscious and athleisure/wellness focused.

Promotion- TikTok & Instagram Reels will carry our brand along with campus pop ups and brand ambassadors.

Showcase our brand as an affordable sustainable alternative to popular athletic brands.

Conclusion

What makes our brand new and different:
Our brand takes inspiration
from the increasing popularity of "thrifting"
to create new products from recycled material to foster a guilt free shopping experience

Why will it succeed:
Our consumers will feel confident that they are purchasing clean, durable product that they can wear to yoga or with heels out the the club

Final Takeaways:
We created an accessible clothing line that will last our customers a lifetime of daily wear.

Thank You