What is at stake for Le Richebourg?

THE OPPORTUNITY

Why spa treatments go underused

Trend in luxury and semi-luxury hotels

- Sector growth: +7% per year in France.
- +9,000 4 and 5 star hotels now offer a spa.
- Objective: strategic differentiation in the high-end market.
- Problem: care remains underconsumed by hosted customers.
- Main causes: lack of time, information or incentive...

Overview of major market trends

Personalization of care through technologies:

- Personalization is now a priority.
- Some establishments offer tailor-made wellness programs: care, movement, nutrition, sleep..

Express care and immediate effectiveness:

- Strong demand for fast and targeted care (“Pick me up treatments”).
- Visible results from the first session, thanks to advanced technologies.
- Meets a need for speed and efficiency, especially for customers in a hurry.

Guests are busy

It's hard to find the right time to promote treatments: once the guest is installed, They are already following a routine.

Making it luxury

Guest don’t see the “value” they perceive treatments as an uncesessary luxury

Supporting research & competitor notes

SCOTT / 2023

Morning may be the best time of day to get a massage for those looking to boost their energy levels and take on the day ahead. This could be beneficial if you're an early riser, looking to enhance your morning routine. Morning massages are also ideal for people who don't want their massage to take up part of their day. Getting a massage in before the day starts sends you off with those benefits working throughout your body without feeling like you're simply adding another task to your day. (Scott, 2023)
